1. Archaeological Museum of Amphipolis

The city of Amphipolis is located two km from Thessaloniki-Kavala motorway (Egnatia road) at the crossroad Serres, Drama, just above of Strymon river. Therein lies the great archaeological site and museum. The Museum is housed in a new building, completed in 1995. All findings are from the surrounding area and reflects the time course of the city. Entering the museum one can see the silver reliquary and gold wreath of olive leaves found in a cist grave at the foundation of the museum.

2. Kasta Tomb

The Kasta Tomb or Casta Tomb, also known as the Amphipolis Tomb, is an ancient Macedonian tomb discovered in Amphipolis, Central Macedonia, in northern Greece in 2012 and first entered in August 2014. The tomb is dated at the last quarter of 4th century B.C., and it is the largest burial monument ever discovered in Greece and by comparison dwarfs the tomb of Philip II of Macedon, father of Alexander the Great, in Vergina.

3. Alistrati cave

Alistrati cave lies about 6 km southeast of the village of Alistrati at a place called "Petroto" in Serres. The expanse of the area is almost 14.000 square meters. At a distance of 250 km from the southern part of the entrance of the Alistrati cave it passes the railway line from Serres to Drama. As a result of the water flow of the river the limestone layers of the mountain has been corroded and the ravine of Aggitis river has been shaped.
